A. L. VAN ANTWERP DIES

Was Railroad Builder in Mexico—Driven Out by Revolution.

Archibald L. Van Antwerp, prominent railroad man and builder of railroads in Mexico, died Thursday at his home, 1125 Tyler street. Mrs. Van Antwerp died last January and Mr. Van Antwerp's death was partially due to grief over the loss of his wife. He is survived by a brother, Charles Van Antwerp, of Lee, Mass., and an uncle, Thomas James, of Nassau, N. Y. A. L. Van Antwerp was graduated from Williams college. He was proficient in many foreign languages. He came to Topeka about twenty-five years ago, but twenty years of the time since was spent in Mexico, where he was at different times agent for a steamship line, traffic manager of the railway from Mexico City to Vera Cruz and a builder of railroads. He wrote for papers in Mexico City and after returning to Topeka, contributed to newspapers and magazines. He was in Mexico at the time of the first revolution and during the battle in Mexico City he died with his wife to the United States. Since that time they lived at 1125 Tyler street until the death of Mrs. Van Antwerp.

WHERE'D SHE GET IT?

Hermitt Woman in Heart of New York Leaves Fortune of $250,000.

New York, May 12.—Broadway's white way lights may be dazzling but they are not revealing. Investigation into the death at Wallack's hotel, corner of Forty-third and Broadway, in the very center of the lobster palace district, of Miss Caroline Marshall, an aged spinster, revealed that for five years she had virtually lived the life of a hermit, had not stepped a foot from her rooms and had hidden away in money and securities $250,000. Miss Marshall died at the hotel March 2. None of the hotel employees knew her; she never had visitors and was never seen outside her rooms.

Use Coconut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain multifid coconut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair. Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage. You can get multifid coconut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. —Advertisement.

CREW LACKED TRAINING

Roanoke Survivor Explains the Loss of So Many Lives.

San Francisco, May 12.—No word of the missing lifeboats of the steamer Roanoke has reached here from Port San Luis. Along the coast for 80 miles watchers scanned the sea for signs of the boats. Outside the tanks Lansing and the steamer Yosemite cruised fruitlessly up and down the coast. At a San Luis Obispo hospital the three survivors, Joseph Elb, Manuel Lopez and Carlos Robino, are gradually gaining in strength.

A report was circulated that the steamer Edgar, H. Vance had picked up a lifeboat containing two men, one dead and one living, but there is no confirmation of the story. The destroyers Hull and Truxtun were dispatched today from San Diego to make a systematic search for the missing men and boats.

Manuel Lopez recovered sufficiently today to talk. "The Roanoke's crew was inexperienced," he said. "A well trained crew could have launched all of the 12 lifeboats and saved everybody on board. The listing of the vessel went on for hours before the steamer finally tipped over."

At San Francisco, H. Stoen, speaking for the North Pacific Steamship company, owners of the Roanoke, declared the ill starred vessel was the victim of an infernal machine. He was the recipient of five vague telephone messages today telling him that an infernal machine was responsible for the disaster. Stoen said the bomb or infernal machine was located forward in the hold.

White was slightly burned about the face and hands in his attempt to extinguish the blaze, which had been started by matches dropped on the floor a short time before. White succeeded in putting out the fire before the department arrived. The loss was nominal.

"You sleep later and go fishin'," answered James, with the air of one who knows.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

KLEEN-MAID

The Finest Bread Ever Produced

Is the Big 10c Loaf of KLEEN-MAID made in this model bakery.

In our model bakery we are turning out bread that represents absolutely the best ever produced by housewife or baker.

The wonderful machines you see in the picture, together with others just as remarkable, reduce baking to an exact science.

The steel arms of this machine mix the dough to an evenness no woman can ever attain.

At the extreme right of the picture you see one of the mixing machines tipped, to transfer the perfectly mixed dough to one of the trows, in which the rising takes place.

Every step is handled in a time-saving, scientific way. There is no guess-work in the making of KLEEN-MAID. Temperatures and processes are under absolute control.

Buy the big 10c loaf for quality and economy.

When we began to bake bread in large 10-cent loaves, there was little demand for it. But those who purchased it made a discovery. They found it tastier, found it did not dry out like a five-cent loaf, consequently there was less waste. The fine wheat flavor is not lost in the baking. That's why the large 10-cent loaf not only tastes better, but it is more economical.
